RANDOM FACTS

COCO: So, you know I have a new girlfriend.

AIMEE: Yeah.

COCO: We do this new thing when we're in the car, we got to thinking about how some animals have sex and conceive...this sort of links to a random fact. We looked into this. It's really cute by the way. So, interestingly, snails are H...hermaphrodites. However you spell it...

AIMEE: Is that the name of the type of snail?

COCO: No, it's linked to their organs - snails have both female and male reproductive organs. So, that means snails can 'f*ck' or be 'f*cked', basically. So this is interesting because...

AIMEE: Okay, hang on, hang on.

COCO: So a snail would be like, 'Oh, hi Aimee, hello!'

AIMEE: I like how you're signing this, with some shoulder action...

COCO: So I see you, I decide I want you, so I'm going to send you a love dart! 'Pow, pow, pow'. If I hit the bullseye, that means I get to claim you.

AIMEE: But what is it?

COCO: We are basically both sending love darts to each other and whoever hits the spot - it would be me obviously. So I'd shoot...

AIMEE: Before you carry on about this fact, I could be better at 'the darting' than you.

COCO: I don't think so...anyway, 'POW' I hit you with my love darts. Then I'd be like 'hmm, actually I decide I'm going to be male today'.

AIMEE: You can decide?

COCO: Yep, you can decide...

AIMEE: So you have both sets of organs?

COCO: Yeah, how interesting is that!?

AIMEE: Do they just pop in and out, how does it work?

COCO: Obviously they don't have vaginas, balls and willies!

AIMEE: Yeah, but they've got both.

COCO: They've got their own snail reproductive organs. But, I can decide which gender I would be. I've picked that. I'm going to be male. So, guess how long they f*ck for? How long?

AIMEE: Going 'at it' like this...how long? I think snails are very, very slow, they do everything slowly. So I would say they'd be 'at it' for 3 hours.

COCO: Really? No. It's almost as long as mine, 12 hours of sex.

AIMEE: That's yours?

COCO: So I can relate to snails.

AIMEE: Really? 12 hours, I'd rather watch Eastenders for 12 hours than f*ck for 12 hours...Are you serious? An all day sex session?

COCO: 12 hours!? It's lovely.

AIMEE: Well, with pauses in between yes but not constantly 'at it'.

COCO: Well obviously, you break for food, drinks, snacks...then get back to the f*cking.

AIMEE: I could do that with breaks for food, but snails go for 12 hours straight?!

COCO: Yeah, they have sex then they give birth within 14 days.

AIMEE: 14 days?It's quite quick. How do they give birth?

COCO: I didn't look into that part.

AIMEE: Do they just open the shell and they pop out?

(Laughing)

DATING

COCO: So, tell me more about your dating life. Are you on dating apps, what do you think of them? I know you're dating lots of hearing men at the moment...Tell me more!

AIMEE: Lots, lots of hearing men?

COCO: Who are you dating...well...f*cking at the moment?

AIMEE: Using dating apps has been quite interesting, as I only started using them in the last year, I never paid attention to them before that. Then last year, do you remember we both downloaded them at the same time?

COCO: Yes, it was a success for you but a flop for me!

AIMEE: You didn't enjoy the dating apps at all, did you? Whereas I got on okay, but wow it is full of hearing people. Obviously, I'm Deaf and was immersed into the hearing world of dating. It was very different. I always put that I was Deaf on my profile. I'd put 'I'm Deaf, let's see if you're up for a challenge' rather than I'm Deaf, I don't speak and I use BSL. I was playful with it, putting down 'let's see if you're up for a challenge', and it showed I was a confident Deaf woman.

COCO: It's key.

AIMEE: I think that's healthy and yeah, important. So I've always made it clear that I'm Deaf. Then we'd exchange messages easily, but when we actually met in person, that was the hardest part! It's scary. You're nervous and unsure

COCO: Yeah, how am I going to communicate?

AIMEE: Having to think about that, yeah, communication. So, some experiences have been good and some experiences not so good. I remember this one guy I matched with - he was gorgeous and I was like 'he fancies me?' He was so handsome. We started texting and something felt off, I felt like he was fake.

COCO: Catfish!

AIMEE: No, this is the sign for 'Catfish'.

COCO: Oh yeah, Catfish!

AIMEE: So I asked him, please can you send some ID.

COCO: (laughing) I remember you telling me about this...

AIMEE: My friend said 'you can't ask that, it's too personal!' But how was I going to know if this person is genuine? My friend was saying, 'no I can't believe you've done that! No!' So we decided to ask for a photo of him with his tongue out or hand on his head or both; give him 1 or 2 tasks to see if he replies then you'll know he is real. So, I learned from that. There's so few Deaf on dating apps, you get with some people but others you don't. So, why did you not like it?

COCO: Well, when I was younger, 17 onwards, actually we didn't really have dating apps. But we had GayDarGirls and MySpace. So I have online-dated and met some people online. Then for the last 6 years, since I broke up with my ex, I wasn't in the mood to do it online. I need a connection with people. I need it to be organic...

AIMEE: Yeah, it's better.

COCO: I need to meet them to see if there's a spark. When I was relying on photos I was constantly swiping left. I needed something more, something with substance, not just a face. Also, I'm really fussy and a bit of a...

AIMEE: Snob!

COCO: (laughs) Just a little bit. I'd rather be face-to-face, it's much better for me. I met my first girlfriend online, the other two I met in real life. My current girlfriend I met through work. It was nice, the chase...

AIMEE: I know what you mean.

COCO: The flirting, the build up, but online you just...

AIMEE: You meet, yeah.

COCO: Just messaging back and forth. You have to force flirt.

AIMEE: You've had a few dates from apps haven't you?

COCO: Yeah, oh God, bad ones

AIMEE: Why bad, tell me more?

COCO: Before I met my partner, I went on two or three dates. The first one was after I broke up with my ex, it was quite a toxic relationship. So my confidence was really low. I wanted to break through that, put myself out there, just like, 'come on Coco!' I met this lovely woman called Nicki, we went on a date and chatted for about an hour or so and it was lovely...

AIMEE: Good vibes?

COCO: Good vibes! Yeah we got on well. Then she asked, 'So, what happened with your ex? Why did you break up?'...I literally just broke down! I started sobbing. I was mortified.

AIMEE: Was it a bashful cry or a full-on, lip-quivering sob?

COCO: I SOBBED! For like 15 or 20 minutes, I couldn't breathe at one point. She was so lovely and understanding about it, reassured and consoled me. She was really sweet and we've been friends ever since.

AIMEE: You didn't kiss her on the date then?

COCO: No, I think it put her off a little bit.

AIMEE: You were not in the condition to kiss someone!

COCO: (laughs) She was like 'you're not ready' and I agreed. I was not ready!

AIMEE: But I think heartbreak is one of the hardest things to go through in life. But I also think that people need to experience it. You have to go through it. I don't know why...because I think that level of upset and sadness that comes from the heartbreak of a relationship, is so different from any other feeling. It helps you become a better person.

COCO: Yeah, I agree, it does.

AIMEE: Also, you shouldn't compare, but it helps with your next relationship. You know what went well and what went wrong.

COCO: Definitely. You learn about yourself, what you like and what's important to you in a relationship, what you need, this and that. After my ex, I feel like I'm more empathetic and understanding now. She felt that I never considered her feelings and I was criticised for that. So now I'm much more thoughtful...

AIMEE: Definitely.

COCO: And I think twice now rather than instantly reacting and thinking 'don't they like me?'. I don't know...I'm now more considerate of others feelings.

AIMEE: Yeah, relationships definitely make you look at who you are as a person. I remember when I broke up with my ex, which was not easy, I did two things for me after the break-up which I'm so grateful for now, looking back. My confidence was all over the place because I'd had regular sex for many years with the same person. Then all of a sudden I had to consider being naked with a new person. I didn't feel confident about that. So I bought twelve sets of new lingerie so that I could wear them throughout the year. They were different colours and styles, but I bought them for myself. Sometimes I'd wear them to go out to a cafe, or I'd meet you for lunch or go to the cinema.

COCO: It made you feel good?

AIMEE: I'd have it on and yeah I'd feel good. If anyone saw it then lucky them but I was wearing it for me. That really boosted my confidence and that confidence helped me reflect on my relationships with partners, my family, my friends and with work - everything. Secondly, I feel very lucky I could afford to pay for counselling, especially with a Deaf counsellor. The waiting list, you'd be waiting a long time.

COCO: The waiting list is so long.

AIMEE: I couldn't wait, mental health is so important and I wanted it to be sorted quickly. Some advice I got there that really hit-home was, when your bag is heavy, what do you do? You look and see what you need, 'do I need this? No, I can take that out, I don't need to carry that.' It was a really useful metaphor for my feelings - I was taking on everyone's feelings and I needed to focus on myself.

COCO: Back off other people!

AIMEE: Wow, that was some really useful advice that I got. I've channelled that into my life now, I'm enjoying relationships and sex more. I'm more confident.

COCO: You mentioned you were in a relationship with a man...obviously a man...I mean a Deaf man. (laughs) Since you've been on the dating scene, you've mostly dated hearing men. Do you feel there's a difference?

AIMEE: Wait, let's clarify...

COCO: Not officially dating...well...f*cking, shagging...

AIMEE: Friends with benefits.

COCO: Slap and tickle...

AIMEE: (sighs) Friends with benefits. So, before I'd always dated Deaf men but I felt like I had no private life. So imagine I was f*cking a Deaf man: so we f*ck, then two weeks later, one of my friends socialises with their friend and they get chatting at a party together and then there's one guy there that I'm having regulars ex with who is also friends with my brother, but then also friends with my ex! I don't want to go to work and they know my private life, there was no privacy. Whereas in the hearing world, nobody knows anything.

COCO: Yeah. There's a lot more privacy.

AIMEE: Obviously the communication is very different, Deaf use BSL and it's different with hearing people. It's just different.

COCO: Yeah, It's a little more limited as well.

AIMEE: You really go for hearing women, I don't think you're keen on a Deaf relationship.

COCO: I've had one...no...two Deaf girlfriends. The first one I was only 14, so it didn't really count. But, yeah, I mainly date hearing people because of the privacy...

AIMEE: Yeah, the privacy.

COCO: I like my own privacy, plus I'm gay. Obviously, the Deaf and gay community is small! So, I've probably shagged all the best, Deaf lesbians, you know what I mean?

(laughing)

COCO: Been there, done that.

AIMEE: The Deaf community is small anyway, so the Deaf lesbian community will be even smaller!

COCO: Who is out there? There's like...no one. Apart from my ex, there's no-one out there I liked.

AIMEE: Yeah, there's no one left for you!

COCO: No-one...

AIMEE: I understand it more now, in terms of privacy because before...

COCO: But also like, my previous exes were...well...my previous two exes were both hearing; one tried to adapt, and she fit in really well with the Deaf community. I'd consider her one of my best friends now and I was with her when I was 21. But my most recent ex, she learnt to sign but I felt...

AIMEE: Just didn't fit in with the community?

COCO: Yeah, she didn't fit in. She didn't understand our culture, you know the 'Deaf way'. There were lots of barriers and conflict between our worlds. An example would be, my Deaf, ex girlfriend was still part of my friendship group because obviously our community is small. So when socialising, my ex would often be there and my girlfriend didn't like it. It was problematic for us.

AIMEE: You couldn't be around each other...

COCO: So, after that I thought, that's it - I want a CODA (a Child Of a Deaf Adult)...or an interpreter, so they would fit in. They'd recognise and understand the Deaf identity. They'd understand both cultures and therefore understand who I am. So, I put it out there to the universe, pleaded and manifested...then I received her.

AIMEE: You're right, with a CODA or an interpreter - you get someone with an understanding of both cultures, rather than profoundly, Deaf or hearing.

COCO: My current girlfriend loves me for who I am. She understands me and my Deaf culture, my family. My parents are grass-root Deaf and...she understands them and can communicate with them. We went to the Lake District with my family recently and it was lovely, I could leave them to it.

AIMEE: You don't have to worry about it.

COCO: Do you think moving forward you would want a hearing man...or are you sticking to Deaf boyfriends, maybe you are more open to a hearing partner now?

AIMEE: All my previous partners have been profoundly Deaf and had Deaf families. So, I never felt excluded or had that 'dinner table syndrome' experience. We were all fluent and communicated well, I'm used to that. But finding a Deaf man now, well, the options are limited. But a hearing partner, one guy learnt to sign and he just picked it up so easy which was fantastic. He was fluent and had a...

COCO: Good attitude.

AIMEE: Yeah. That meant the sex was much better because we had a connection. With other hearing people the sex had been fun but there wasn't as much of a connection because they couldn't sign. I'm much more open to dating a hearing person now. I used to be a firm no, Deaf only!

COCO: I remember you were adamant.

AIMEE: Now, I'm much more open to the idea although I'd still be nervous about a relationship with a hearing person because I've never experienced it before. I'm open, I would give it a try. But at the moment, I'm just enjoying single life and what's out there.

SEX

COCO: So, sex! What's your favourite sexual position? (Oh, what's mine?)

AIMEE: I have one. It's when the other person is lying down and I'm on top, facing the other way.

COCO: What do you mean?

AIMEE: Do you want me to show you? So imagine this is the bed.

COCO: Yes, show me - shall I lie down?

AIMEE: So, you need to lie down.

COCO: (Aimee lies on top of coco) Ahhh! Then what?

AIMEE: Now we have a connection. You can kiss my neck...

COCO: Ahh! (Coco giggles, trying to get comfortable)

AIMEE: Hang on, wait! Wait! Let me explain...So you can kiss the neck (Coco kisses). Stop! Then you can touch the breasts, reach everything down here. We've got a connection, it's lovely. You can do it with your girlfriend too. It's lesbian-friendly.

COCO: I'm quite small, I can't reach.

AIMEE: Yeah, yeah but it's nice. You can still have a relaxing conversation, how was your day? What would you like for dinner?

COCO: (Aimee quickly sits up) Ouch!

AIMEE: Have you seen that before? What's your favourite?

COCO: Thank you for teaching me!

AIMEE: You look flustered...have some water.

COCO: Sorry girlfriend. Apologies to my girlfriend. Wow, I wasn't expecting that. Thank you for educating me.

AIMEE: So, what's yours?

COCO: I think you know mine...licking. I Love licking.

AIMEE: Yes, you love licking out, but I mean what position are you in when you're doing it?

COCO: I like to give oral and penetrate at the same time. I go till their legs shake, then penetrate, and they squirt. That's me to them...But them to me...don't know, probably...doggy. I don't mind a bit of doggy style.

AIMEE: Okay, so, I know you're a lesbian but you've f*cked men on holiday?

COCO: This seems to be the case, yes.

AIMEE: More men than me, but that's fine it's your holiday!

COCO: Really it's linked to...I'd been a 'gold star', this is a lesbian term which means you've never f*cked a man before.

AIMEE: That's a gold star?

COCO: Yeah. I was a 'gold star' lesbian for 30 years and I had a bucket list of things I wanted to do and it was on the list. I just wanted to tick it off to say I've done it...

AIMEE: Tick!

COCO: ...and to see what it's like. The opportunity came up so I thought, 'f*ck it - you, me let's go'. I liked it more than I thought I would. I was more of a giver but, now that I've done it, I'm more versatile. Growing up, I was always the giver, so I wanted to let go and let the man take control.

AIMEE: A one-off role reversal, just to see. It's nice.

COCO: Yeah, it was fun. I did tell them I was a lesbian...

AIMEE: "Oh, just to inform you, I'm a lesbian!"

COCO: (laughing) Yeah! "I'm a lesbian, practically a virgin, so you're going to have to lead."

AIMEE: How did your friends react when you told them? Obviously they know you're a lesbian so, when you said you f*cked a man, did they have questions? Did they question your sexuality?

COCO: No, they were all shocked, but I've always said that I wanted to try it. They didn't question whether my sexual preference changed. Before I was strictly lesbian, whereas now I'd say I'm more queer and open. I'd f*ck anything, really.

AIMEE: But, really, you don't need to label yourself.

COCO: It's not important, no.

AIMEE: A perfect example is your girlfriend, she has been straight all her life until she fell for you but she doesn't want the label of lesbian. You don't need a label. Sometimes you f*ck women and sometimes you f*ck men. That doesn't mean that you're...that doesn't mean that...you're...

COCO: (laughing) What?

AIMEE: Wait, I've confused myself. It doesn't mean...that you're...straight.

COCO: Fluid.

AIMEE: Yeah, fluid. There's no label.

COCO: We don't always need labels. That's a worry with our current society, obsessed with labels, labels, labels and you don't always need that.

AIMEE: Labels, labels, labels! They create pressure.

COCO: Growing up I was always asked, what are you? I'm like, I'm just Coco. I am who I am. I think labelling can sometimes confine you as a person and then you're restricted. Mix and you'll be fine.

AIMEE: It can create so much pressure as well. Without a label you can be who you want to be, experiment if you want to. Please yourself.

COCO: You're straight, but you've f*cked a woman before haven't you? How was that?

AIMEE: Yeah, it was funny because I didn't expect it at all. I went to a close friend's wedding, then went back to the accommodation and it just happened. It was surreal. It was...interesting. Most of my friends were like, "Aimee what are you doing?" I was shocked with myself, but I've always been open and said I'd like to try it with a woman, as it would be a new experience.

COCO: That sort of links to this one girl that I dated for a while - she was just my type, perfect, lovely and gorgeous, we connected really well. Then when we started f*cking, I was like "Oh!" It was like she was...in a 'porno'...

AIMEE: Did you sign porn?

COCO: Yeah, (signs) how do you sign porn?

AIMEE: (signs) Porn.

COCO: Oh, I may have made that sign up.

AIMEE: (laughs) You definitely made it up, I've never seen it before! (signs) Porn...although contextually it's kind of right.

COCO: Anyway, yeah, so when we f*cked, it was like a porn film - all posing and pouting, making fake noises, groaning and moaning. She was just like...uhh, I hated it! It gave me the 'ick!'. Hated it. Even if I dropped something, she'd bend over seductively. Not for me. Not for me. I ran a mile - "bye!" It was a shame really because she was lovely.

PORN

AIMEE: But porn though...sometimes it's not even in yet and they're moaning. I'm like, 'hello', it's not even in. Fair enough when it's in, you can moan away. But, when they're whining with no penetration, it just makes me disengage from it, too fake.

COCO: You don't watch porn then? I'm the same.

AIMEE: Some of my female friends watch it, and male friends, but I'm just not interested. I don't watch it and I don't get horny from it. If it's in a film, I can get off on that, I might get excited, but not porn.

COCO: You have the build up in a film, whereas in porn it's just 'wham, bam!' - just too fake.

AIMEE: Porn is very, very popular but it can affect marriages and relationships. Some couples have split up because the husbands or wives are watching too much porn. Also there's a lot of expectations from porn with women in skimpy outfits and how they have sex. Then in real life it's not the same, people are like, "No. no, no, I want what I saw in the porn?"

COCO: That's the problem.

AIMEE: So, expectations and pressures get higher and higher

COCO: Another problem with porn is that the women are so skinny, with big fake boobs. It's not realistic. The vagina is always smooth and clean-shaven. It's not realistic is it!

AIMEE: It's not like that in real life, yeah.

COCO: Some women don't want to shave, they are hairy and that's fine. It's not very well represented. I know the most watched type of porn includes rough sex. Does everyone like rough sex? No.

AIMEE: It's like consent, too. You need consent for that, you should be checking to see if they are okay with being choked, rather than just grabbing and choking them. You have to ask, "Do you mind, is that ok?" I remember my ex used to watch porn all the time and I was really, really offended because I was like 'hello, I'm over here!'

COCO: What, when you were together?

AIMEE: Yeah, when he was in the relationship with me.

COCO: I don't like that.

AIMEE: I was like, "you're with me, but you're watching porn?" I was like, 'hello I do look after myself'.

COCO: "Look at me!" Look at you! You're beautiful!

AIMEE: (flattered) Oh, stop!

COCO: Wake up, man!

AIMEE: But I look after myself, our sex life was good. I felt like I met his needs so why was he watching porn? So I offered a 'porn ban' - I will give you porn, forget that, I will give you porn instead. So, I would send him pictures and videos of myself. He stopped...well maybe in secret he watched it. But in hindsight I shouldn't have stopped him watching porn. I should have told him how I felt about it, rather than banning

it. I've learned from that, I should have explained how I felt and asked what he thought about it - open conversation.

COCO: Or watch it together?

AIMEE: I don't want to watch it, I'd fall asleep, he'd have a w*nk. It affected my confidence though...

COCO: That would offend me, as well.

AIMEE: ...because it's on a different level and doesn't represent real sex. So yeah, I don't think porn is our thing.

'ICKS'

COCO: My 'ick' is the fake posing. I Hate it! What's your 'ick' linked to sex?

AIMEE: I think my 'ick' is bad kissing. Right, so, if there is an attraction there with someone, the first thing I need to do is kiss them.

COCO: Of course.

AIMEE: It is number one, most important.

COCO: Well, I can't imagine f*cking before kissing someone.

AIMEE: I can't stand it when they use too much tongue! Like, chill out! It's like a washing machine, going down the back of your throat.

COCO: A washing machine, that's disgusting!

AIMEE: I remember one experience with a guy, he used far too much tongue and when he left I literally had to wash my face.

COCO: Oh no, in your mouth or around? Like licking your face?

AIMEE: Yeah, it was just horrible, that's my number one 'ick'.

COCO: Did you give any feedback?

AIMEE: (laughs) I did text him to say, "can you calm it down with the tongue action." He agreed and confessed to being overexcited and he'd be less excitable next time. He did calm down a bit, but it was just so important - huge 'ick' for me.

COCO: Kissing is so important.

AIMEE: You have to be a good kisser or you can forget it.

COCO: If you had to choose only sex or kissing for the rest of your life what would it be? When I say kissing I mean snuggling, cuddling, kissing or f*cking without kissing?

AIMEE: F*cking without kissing? So it's just f*cking.

COCO: No, just pump-pump. Which one would you choose?

AIMEE: F*ck that. I would choose...

COCO: We've got quite high sexdrives haven't we. Choose wisely.

AIMEE: I would choose...kissing and cuddling.

COCO: Same.

AIMEE: One thing I've learned is that I get a bit of an orgasm from kissing, I had a small orgasm from one recently which never happened before. That was new.

COCO: I love kissing when you're sort of breathing the other person in. You know what I mean? Have you done that?

AIMEE: Yeah...

COCO: I love it. I love it. I LOVE IT!

AIMEE: I think we should have a break. I can see you getting a little flustered over there.

COCO: I know...PORN!

BOWL OF WORDS

AIMEE: Why don't we pick a word from our bowl? Bowl of words.

COCO: Give it to me. Give it to me!

AIMEE: This could change everything.

COCO: You pick!

AIMEE: Okay (picks a piece of paper out of the bowl).

COCO: Do you want me to read it?

AIMEE: Yes, read it.

COCO: The 'C word'. Perfect.

AIMEE: Let me see it?

COCO: The C word. 'C-U-Next-Tuesday'.

AIMEE: That's your old favourite word, isn't it?

COCO: Yeah.

AIMEE: It's funny because that's quite relevant to the topic.

COCO: So you know you sign the 'C word' like this...(signs) and if it's wet, you should sign it like this (signs and riggles her fingers)...I'm just letting everyone know that I created this sign. This is my sign.

AIMEE: The 'C word' itself is interesting isn't it. Deaf people use it in BSL quite often but for a hearing person to say the word it's quite shocking.

COCO: They think it's awful.

AIMEE: But Deaf people have a different view on it.

COCO: But I think it's because we sign it like vagina, it's visual...we don't always speak the word 'ct' when signing it. Do you know what I mean?

AIMEE: Vagina, ct, pussy.

COCO: When a hearing person says the word the 't' is amplified...

AIMEE: CT! It sounds sharp!

COCO: ...and it's quite derogatory to be called a ct. I think hearing people are against it. I used it quite a lot back in the day, but I've grown out of it now.

AIMEE: I remember, I didn't realise how offended hearing people were by it. Some Deaf people used the word all the time and when I could see how shocked hearing people were by it, I realised.

COCO: Yeah, I like the word. I find it quite powerful. You rarely use that word, do you?

AIMEE: No, I don't really swear.

COCO: No you don't actually.

AIMEE: My parents didn't really swear when I was growing up. I don't think it's necessary.

COCO: My parents don't really swear.

AIMEE: I only swear if it's absolutely necessary.

COCO: You're right, you don't swear..

AIMEE: Some people talk like, "I'm going to the f*cking shop to buy a f*cking Coca Cola." C'mon you don't need to swear. Or "f*ck off!" It's not really my style to swear.

COCO: Yeah, I swear a lot.

AIMEE: Yeah, you do swear a lot. I quite enjoy watching it but I just don't do it, it doesn't suit me.

COCO: It doesn't suit you, nah. Maybe it would suit you...but no. The 'C word', don't use it, it's horrible.

AIMEE: Tell yourself.

COCO: I use it less now, I've cut down. I think at Christmas, I was given a 'ct' mug.

AIMEE: With the word 'ct' on it? You also have a T-shirt with it on, don't you?

COCO: Yeah, I've got a T-shirt.

AIMEE: Maybe you need to start selling them off.

COCO: It's not good. No more.

AIMEE: No more ct. No more.

COCO: Throw it away, no more ct. Balls, b*ll*cks, testicles instead.

AIMEE: My cup of tea is empty.

COCO: Would you like more tea?

AIMEE: Yeah, tea please, 2 sugars.

NEXT TIME

COCO: You were really obsessed with me! You kept approaching me. I had to tell you back off! Be honest, tell them.

AIMEE: You, be honest! No, I remember you were very flirtatious!

COCO: I am a flirty person.

(laughing)
